Technology

SPC wall panels are manufactured in the SPC (Stone Polymer Composite) technology, and their connection is tongue-and-groove, thanks to which:

- they are waterproof, so they can be used in rooms with high humidity, such as bathrooms or kitchens;
- they do not require grouting, and combining them gives a subtle effect. They are an interesting alternative to tiles;
- the installation is intuitive and simple, so you can enjoy the results immediately after finishing the work;

High resistance

A series of tests in both indoor and outdoor laboratories have shown that SPC wall panels have a high impact resistance. The panels do not deform and their outer solid layer remains intact.

High quality material is resistant to staining from agents such as coffee or tea, to solutions of ethyl alcohol, acetic acid or sodium bicarbonate solution. Gentle cleaners are recommended for panel care.

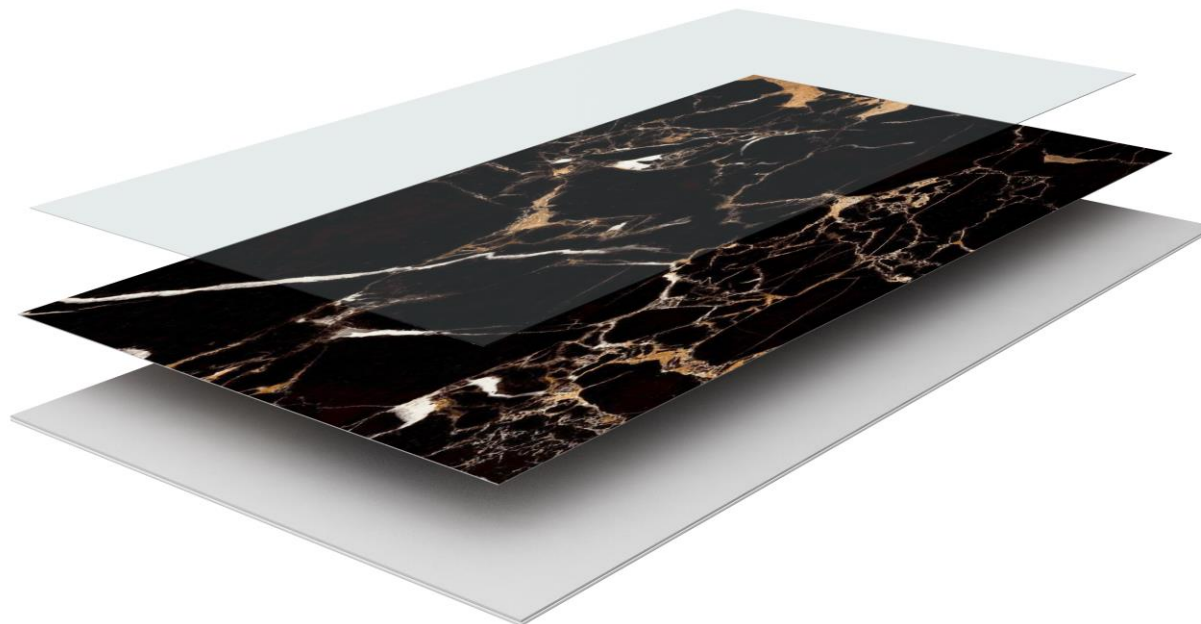

Matt and gloss patterns

In the offer of SPC panels we can find 10 designs. Five of them are glossy finish. One of the advantages of glossy panels is the fact that they optically enlarge even small rooms - turning them into exclusive and more spacious interiors. The offer is complemented matt patterns which are becoming more and more popular in interior design - no streaks or dirt are visible on them.
